Visiting DUBLIN

10th January 2019. Written by Laurence Norah

Dublin is a fun and amazing city to visit, and a must if you're going to Ireland. It is a beautiful capital city. I always enjoy visiting, meeting the locals and of course, eating some delicious Irish speciality!

Today, I am going to share with you my ideas of how to spend a fantastic day in Dublin.

Ready? Let's get going.

How about learning about Irish history? First, you can visit the incredible Irish Emigration Museum. You will discover that millions of Irish people have emigrated from Ireland and crossed the ocean to the New World.

Then, what about visiting the best University in Ireland? The first Queen Elizabeth founded Trinity College and as you can imagine, it has a rich history and a number of impressive buildings to look and visit.

Time for some art! Why don't you go to the National Gallery? is home to Ireland's collection of Irish and European art, including extraordinary paintings by Turner, Rembrandt and Irish impressionist Walter Osborne. There is plenty to see here.

Now, let's talk about Dublin's most popular sights...the statue of Molly Malone. It is located on Grafton Street. Molly Malone is the fictional heroine of one of Ireland's most well-known songs.

Whenever you visit, you will want to be prepared for all weathers - Ireland is known as the Emerald Isle so rain is a possibility at any time of year.
